1.0 INTRODUCTION

The Open Government Partnership (OGP) is a global initiative that aims at promoting transparency, accountability, citizen empowerment, and encouraging the use of new technologies to improve governance. Open Government Partnership is a coalition of Governments, citizens and Civil Society Organisations working together to advance transparency and accountability in Government.

The United Republic of Tanzania joined the OGP initiative in September, 2011. The intention is to make Government business more open to its citizens in the interest of improving public service delivery, government responsiveness, combating corruption and building greater trust. The adoption and implementation of OGP aims at complementing various Government initiatives that are currently being implemented in Tanzania built on key pillars of good governance. The four main pillars of OGP are transparency; citizen participation; accountability and technology and innovation.

The focus has been on three service delivery sectors of Health, Education and Water. In this respect, in order to improve and sustain good governance efforts, the Government has committed itself to increase the availability of information about Government activities, support citizens participation by promoting public engagement, implementing high standards of professional integrity, ensuring transparency in the management of public finances, and increase access to new technologies for openness and accountability.

To achieve this objective, the Government in collaboration with civil society, developed a one year (2011/12 – 2012/13) Action Plan, whereby commitments were agreed and endorsed. All responsible sectors were then required to submit implementation reports on quarterly basis. The annual OGP implementation reports have been compiled and a summary is attached in the matrix below.

3.0 CONCLUSION

Findings in the matrix indicate that, all relevant sectors have to a large extent managed to fulfill their obligations under the OGP Action Plan. However, there have been some challenges. For instance, given the size of the country, it has been difficult to disseminate, popularize and domesticate the OGP programme comprehensively to grass root levels; ambitious commitments under the Action Plan have made it difficult to be fully implemented; civil society and private sector participation has been relatively low and inadequate resources have hindered effective implementation.

However, it is worth noting that OGP provides an opportunity for the Government to hasten, enhance and promote good governance, responsiveness and accountability. Citizens' increased demands for good governance, accountability and improved service delivery dictates that governments should embrace the open government concept. As we prepare the next two years' Tanzania Open Government Action Plan, emphasis will be on achieving those goals.
